HomeLife, Inc. Founded on need.
Built on success.

six key OBJECTIVES used in meeting our Vision and Mission

Clean, Friendly, Home-like Environment

The first objective at HomeLife is to provide a clean, safe, and friendly home-like environment that promotes normal everyday activities and experiences. House cleaning, games, activities, cooking, and celebrating important events and holidays are all part of this experience. It's important that every HomeLife client will always feel like they are truly at home.

Active Treatment that Promotes Client Stability

A second and equally important objective is to help our clients stay behaviorally and medically stable through active treatment and regular case review. This promotes an on-going secure and healthy environment for progress toward individual goals. Without this daily influence it's often difficult for clients to enjoy the normal everyday experiences life offers.

Life Experiences and Quality of Life

Client stability generated by active treatment leads to greater life experiences and quality of life for HomeLife residents. When clients are medically and behaviorally stable, they benefit greatly from home and community activities, life skills training, and therapy. This kind of stability is a necessary first step in accomplishing normal living and therapeutic goals.

Skilled Caring Staff (Employee Development)

To accomplish the above objectives and make them real, it takes skilled and caring employees. Employee development is critical to the ultimate success of HomeLife and its residents. And none of this can happen without classroom and on-the-job training, work experiences, team building, performance evaluations, rewards, and long-term retention goals that benefit our employees as well as our organization.

Systematic Approach

A clear and systematic approach to care giving ensures that HomeLife can achieve each of our objectives by completing defined processes in a reliable, efficient, and accurate manner to benefit our customers. The use of checklists, routine reviews, report cards, dashboards, meetings, management reports, and well defined procedures help ensure systems are properly monitored to meet the needs and expectations of our customers and stakeholders.

Business Results and People Success

By meeting the objectives above, HomeLife endeavors to achieve high customer satisfaction and reliable business results that maintain a strong and thriving organization. This we believe creates a healthy environment for residents to succeed and employees to grow and develop: the keys to our success.
