HomeLife provides specialized residential care home programs to adults 18 and older who need assistance due to brain injury, neurological impairment or mental illness.

"This move marks the continued growth of HomeLife over the past 10 years," Bruns said. "HomeLife now operates six specialized programs with over 100 employees. With an eye on continuing quality, this new office provides more space to accommodate our current business operations and future growth."

Bruns and co-founder Scott Christ established HomeLife, Inc. in 1996 with a vision to provide care to individuals with disabilities, and those struggling with the long-term effects of brain injury and mental illness. Today HomeLife's six Kalamazoo area programs each provide stable and optimal care that dignifies their clients as individuals while meeting their unique challenges.

HomeLife's key focus is on providing active treatment in home-like environments that promote stability and quality life experiences for our consumers. "To accomplish this we are committed to training and developing our employees using a systematic approach," Bruns said. "Skilled caring employees are vital to our vision, mission, and values at HomeLife."
